

The socio-economic consequences of the COVID-19 pandemic @GROWINPRO Modelling, empirics and policy designs

2 December 2020

14.00-18.00

web-conference

The conference collects and presents the research outputs developed by the GROWINPRO consortium addressing and developing analyses and policy guidelines to tackle the COVID-19 crisis.

Featuring contributions on (i) modelling of the pandemic and its interaction with the economic structure, (ii) asymmetric economic effects for individuals, firms and sectors of the economy, (iii) policy responses which have been undertaken and new pathways ahead, the workshop will be a venue to improve our understanding of the many interactions undergoing between collective safety, national health systems and socio-economic well-being.

The design of a sustainable agenda to tackle the new emerging pressures will be addressed in a final round-table involving members of the advisory board of GROWINPRO and of the civil society.
